MAN IS TRAPPED BY CAVE-IN

CAPITAL PLANS WELCOME FOR TEAM

POLITICS SHOWN INTO BACKGROUND BY ORDER OF FANS

Washington Directing All Activities To Reception

PRESIDENT WILL PLAY A BIG ROLE

Chief Executive Will Head the Notables Participating

(Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30.—Politics, but forgotten, Washington, official and unofficial, today completed plans for welcoming home its victorious pennant winning American league baseball team.

While the club was in Boston to play its final game of the league season, all activities here were directed toward giving the players a rousing reception upon their arrival at union station, scheduled for tomorrow.

President Coolidge will lead in that reception with an address of welcome, after the team has been escorted up Pennsylvania avenue to the elipse, just south of the white house, in a parade which bids fair to exceed in enthusiasm any in many years that has marched along the famous avenue.

All that can be done to evidence the pride the capital feels in its champions will be done.

The New York Giants have the edge in their world series rivals, the Washington Senators, when it comes to offensive and defensive ability of their respective infields, a comparison of the two clubs, based on the latest averages, reveals.

Deliberation of the diamond congress will begin in the capital city on Saturday and continued through Sunday, after which the struggle will be continued in New York.

More than four ballots are necessary, the fifth also will be taken in New York and the sixth will be cast in Washington. The site for the seventh and final vote, unless a tie results, will be decided by the much-sought after die, the god of chance.

DAVIS LEAVES FOR WESTWARD SWING

Order States Will Be Visited By Candidate During His Tour

(Associated Press)

LOCUST VALLEY, N. Y., Sept. 30.—After three days of rest here, John Davis, Democratic presidential nominee, will set forth tonight on the last lap of a campaign tour which will take him as far west as Missouri, far east as Massachusetts, and as far south as Baltimore.

Beginning the final drive for the presidency in the east tomorrow, he will set out in that territory during the last week in October. Between the two states of Kentucky and Mississippi, he will make his second westward swing, visiting en route the order states of Kentucky and Mississippi.

Leaving New York city at midnight tonight, Mr. Davis will speak tomorrow at Frederick, Md., and tomorrow night will deliver an address at Baltimore in the fifth regiment armory, where Woodrow Wilson was nominated in 1912.

SHANGHAI, Sept. 30.—The fourth day of continuous fighting between Chinese and Japanese troops near Shanghai, with no evidence of termination of the conflict.

Earl Cooper to Marry After Romance

MRS. JANE R. BAILEY

During a race in the East some time ago, Earl Cooper, the famous automobile race driver, saw a beautiful, red-haired woman in the crowd as his car flashed past. He could never get her out of his mind. A few days ago his car crashed with another car on the streets of Los Angeles. The other car was driven by Mrs. Jane R. Bailey, of Troy, N. Y. She was the "red-haired woman." She will soon become Cooper's bride.

JEWISH NEW YEAR BEING CELEBRATED

Special Services Held, Scripture Accounts Being Read

Orthodox Jews of the Twin Cities are continuing the Rosh Hoshonah or Jewish New Year's celebration through Tuesday, but the Reformed sect terminated the celebration at sunset Monday.

Monday marked the beginning of the year 5685, stated A. D. Cohen who added that the figures represented the time that had elapsed since the creation of the world according to the Jewish calendar.

At the Jewish synagogue on Bank street on Monday, M. S. Barnett and L. Lesser conducted a special service in recognition of the new year.

Mr. Cohen stated that the service consisted of prayers and scripture reading. Mr. Lesser read the scripture account of the test of Abraham at the time that patriarch felt that he was called upon to offer his son Isaac as a human sacrifice. The local Jewish stores were closed Monday among those belonging to the Reformed sect but the stores of the orthodox Jews were closed both Monday and Tuesday.

CHILD HOLDS OWN

Little Evelyn Brown, who has been in the Benevolent hospital since Saturday night suffering from a serious fracture of the skull today was reported as holding her own.

GIRL WILL STICK WITH YATES TO LAST DITCH, SHE TELLS FRIENDS

Couple Already Married, Minister Says, And Ready to 'Face It All'

(Associated Press)

BALLINGER, Texas, Sept. 30.—The Rev. Joseph E. Yates, held in jail here on abduction charges, filed in Oklahoma, said today he would return to that state with the sheriff of Nowata county, waiving extradition proceedings.

The youthful girl, whom the 48-year-old minister is charged with abducting, declares she will stay with Yates "to the last ditch." She is under care of the sheriff's wife, pending arrival of her father who is due tonight, with the sheriff, from Oklahoma.

Wearing a boyish bob and attired in clothing she said Rev. Yates' sister had given her, the young woman was found in a field where Yates' father was at work yesterday. The officers brought her here with Yates.

VALLEY CLUB WILL OPEN HOME EARLY NEXT MONTH, PLAN

Building Now Is Nearly Ready for Occupancy By the Members

FURNITURE FOR HOME IS BOUGHT

Well To Furnish Water For Club; Electric Line Finished

The Valley Country Club members will soon be in their new home on their 83 acre farm south of the Twin Cities, according to plans now being pushed by Mrs. J. W. Wyker, chairman of the house furnishing committee, and by Charles Rountree, president of the club.

Mr. Rountree stated today that as yet the exact date for the opening had not been agreed upon, but that he looked for the big event within the next few weeks.

Mrs. Wyker stated that the furniture for the clubhouse had been ordered, but that it was not yet known just when the dealers would be able to fill the order.

Plans for modern conveniences at the farm of the country club, when they materialize will make the club very comfortable.

The large deep well near the club house has been examined and found to furnish sufficient water for all needs. The well water and not that of the Tennessee river will be used for all purposes.

Mr. Rountree stated that the recently purchased electric motor to be used in pumping water from the well, has just arrived and will be installed at once.

The water tank will be ready for the water, as soon as the pump is in working order, stated Mr. Rountree. The new water system has cost about $1,000.

An electric line will furnish the lights for the clubhouse and the adjoining yards, it was stated.

Modern Plumbing Already In

All the water and sewer pipes necessary to equip the clubhouse through out have been placed by local plumbers and the work has been pronounced first class. The heating system has been installed and dining room completed.

The painting of the exterior and interior of the clubhouse has been finished and some of the decorations are ready. Only the regular house furnishings remain to be placed, and then everything will be "all set" for the house warming, that will mark the formal opening of the club.

Alleged Rum Runner Faces Death for Piracy

MAX JEROME PHAFF

Max Jerome Phaff, a German-American alleged bootlegger, is under arrest at Havre, France, on a charge of piracy, the penalty for which is death. The French declare he is the "master mind" in the gang of pirates who boarded the French steamer Mulsanne off the coast of Long Is. and stole her entire $200,000 whiskey cargo. Phaff asserts he was in Canada at the time and knew nothing of the piracy.

RAIL OFFICIALS SEE BIG FALL BUSINESS

Prospects Are Brighter Twin-City Visitors Declare Today

Four prominent railroad officials of the Southern and Louisville and Nashville systems, the two trunk lines that pass through the Twin Cities were here today: Superintendent L. H. Woodall of the Memphis-Chattanooga division of the Southern railway, Superintendent J. A. Morrison of the South and North Division of the Louisville and Nashville; Assistant Superintendent E. G. Evans of the same division and Joseph H. Settle, Traveling Passenger agent of the Louisville and Nashville railroad.

Without exception the officials gave out statements showing that business is on the upgrade, with prospects very bright for rushing business in the near future.

Mr. Woodall said the outstanding big job his road was now doing in the maintenance department, is the erection of a new bridge over the Hatchie River between Corinth and Memphis.

In speaking of the passenger business on his road Mr. Settle said it was fairly good, but that winter tourists were expected to increase that traffic in a few weeks. Mr. Settle said that the Gulf Coast was becoming more and more popular as both a winter and summer resort.

Birmingham District Active
Mr. Evans, who lives in Birmingham, stated that freight business on the Louisville and Nashville system was on the increase, and that industrial developments in the Birmingham district had increased the tonnage at Birmingham very greatly at this time.

Mr. Woodall stated that all along the Southern Railway from Memphis to Chattanooga more trains were being required to handle the increasing freight business. He said the movements of cotton and cotton seed were getting larger week by week.

Engine and Two Cars Are Derailed

TRAINING SCHOOL ALREADY PROVES DECIDED SUCCESS

Expectations Exceeded By Attendance At the Session

TEXT BOOKS NOT SUFFICIENT NOW

All Denominations Are Invited To Attend the School

The Standard Training school as opened last night for regular class room work at the Central Methodist church, has already surpassed the expectations of its promoters, both as to interest manifested and as to the number of students taking the several courses. It was found early in the evening that an additional supply of text books would have to be secured if each student was to have a book. This was the case in the class of Dr. W. G. Henry who is teaching "The Principles of Religious Teaching."

Rev. W. M. McDonald, of the North Alabama conference educational board has general direction of the school, and reminds the teachers when their teaching periods have expired. Dr. Slaton is teaching "The Organization and Administration of the Sunday School." Miss Parham teaches "Primary Organization" and Miss Baker, who was Dr. James D. Hunter's assistant at the Mobile Methodist church is teaching "Junior Organization."

All Denominations Invited

It was made plain at the school last night that those present were at liberty to bring any to the school for the courses or "to listen in", of all denominations or of no denomination. Dr. W. G. Henry gave a special invitation to the general public. He teaches in the main church auditorium.

There were almost 75 people under his instruction last night. He lived in this section for years and has held pastorates at Athens and at Trinity and at other points in the Tennessee Valley. Dr. Henry is now a professor at Emory University, and is regarded as one of the ablest teachers and preachers in Southern Methodism.

Places Personality First

In opening the lesson last night Dr. Henry called attention to some of the qualifications for Christian leadership. He places "Personality" first in importance, saying personality "is the method of soul expression." It was taught that back of the words of the Bible were its great personalities and that where reading the Bible converted one, a person who knows the truth may convert thousands. It was shown that what teachers are, is infinitely more important than what they say. "Your life talks so loud I cannot hear your words" quoted the teacher from Emerson. The speaker declared that the world's great personalities could be counted on the fingers of one hand. Christ, Himself was named as the really great personality of all time.

It was declared that Wilson and Roosevelt had great personalities. As to methods of teaching, Dr. Henry seemed to think the "lecture system" was not so valuable as when questions were asked and answered, and where students took a lively interest in the lesson. Good humor, self control, "generosity of spirit," love for and knowledge of the student and of the subject in hand, and "recently, frequency and intensity" were declared to be necessary possession of all who make good teachers.

Dr. Henry advised that children "know enough to want to do right, and that is all I know" hence they should be taught religious truths early in life.

one was injured it was reported. The train was bound from Savannah to Montgomery. Traffic was delayed for several hours on the line but the break was repaired later this morning.

Bigamist, But She Escapes

MARIE SANTER

Bigamy, according to New York law, must be premeditated, and that is why Marie Santer, pretty Brooklyn girl, escaped after she had admitted having married two men. She thought the first one had been in a railroad wreck, she said. The second sued to annul his marriage.

JAPANESE PLAN IS AGREED TO FINALLY

Difficult Situation On Protocol Believed Smoothed Out

(Associated Press)

GENEVA, Sept. 30.—The difficult situation endangering the protocol on arbitration and security brought about by the demand of the Japanese delegation for an amendment to the protocol, was smoothed out today to the satisfaction of the Japanese.

This important step was accomplished by a special committee which worked out a definite plan for arranging the protocol to remove the Japanese objections and thereby to prevent an adverse vote by the Japanese delegation when the protocol is submitted to the assembly of the League of Nations.

The compromise plan was submitted this afternoon to the sub-commission on arbitration. It provides a system whereby all conflicts between nations even those arising over matters of internal jurisdiction, may be examined by the council of the league, when say member introduces the subject for discussion.

Their second proposition, which was considered as gravely endangering the future of the protocol and of the proposed international conference on disarmament provided by it, called for the suppression of the protocol clause which proclaimed as an aggressor, any state refusing to abide by a world court ruling that a particular dispute confirmed the sovereign rights of the state complained against, and hence that no conflict was justifiable.

Kiwanis Club Is Asking For Funds For School Needs

Today the members of the school finance committee of the Morgan Kiwanis club is asking for donations from the local people for the provision of children of school age who have neither the necessary equipment or the finances to attend school. The donations have been liberal which has always been the case in all worthy causes to which the local people have been asked to contribute.

It has been requested that if anyone knows of any child of school age that is in need of clothing, books or finances that J. W. Clifton be notified in Decatur and that C. J. Randolph be notified at the Y. M. C. A. as chairman of the Albany committee.

This is a good work and a worthy cause. Lend a hand in it and see that the kiddies are not denied that which belongs to them.

CLAUD BERLIN IS BURIED BENEATH 3 FEET OF EARTH

Brick Company Plant Scene of Accident Near Noon Today

INJURED MAN IS SENT TO HOSPITAL

Berlin Unconscious For Sometime After Accident

Claud Berlin, victim of a cave-in at noon today, died early this afternoon at the hospital, his neck being broken and his jaw fractured.

Claud Berlin, aged 20 years, employee of the Decatur Brick and Tile company, was taken to the Benevolent hospital at 12:30 o'clock today in an unconscious condition following an earth cave in at a clay pit of the company located about a quarter of a mile east from the main buildings of the plant.

The bank of earth that caved in on young Berlin is said to have covered him completely to a depth of about three feet and sometime was required to dig him out.

Berlin is said to have been badly bruised and his head especially was greatly injured reports state.

It is said that the jaw bone is fractured.

Dr. H. D. Greer, who took charge of the boy soon after the accident is reported as saying that as yet not enough is known about the condition of Berlin to warrant an opinion as to whether he will live or die.

Was Getting Out Clay

The particular job assigned Berlin was to assist in loading the electric shovels in the clay pits from which the brick and tile company gets its supply of raw material.

He had been employed by the company several months, it is said, and was accustomed to the work he was doing when the earth fell upon him.

The accident is said to have occurred near 11:30 o'clock this morning and medical attention was given Berlin at once, but it was found impossible to remove him to the hospital until 12:30 o'clock. He was breathing with difficulty when he arrived at the hospital.

Shriners Banquet Next Tuesday Eve

The first of the Tennessee Valley Shrine club banquets since early summer will be held when a dinner is served by a professional chef who is expected here in a few days. An official of the club stated the chef would spend at least two days preparing the Tuesday evening dinner.

Invitations are being sent to the membership of the club throughout the Valley and not less than seventy five dinners are expected. Plans already under consideration by club officials for providing a charity fund, will be discussed at the Tuesday night gathering, it was stated by W. W. Rahm president of the club.

Brains of Dog Show Hydrophobia Traces

The brains of a dog, which had bitten a boy, a chicken and a duck at Moulton, have shown the animal was suffering from hydrophobia at the time according to a test made today by Dr. A. J. Perolio, director of the Tennessee Valley laboratory. The dog head was sent here by Dr. R. P. Irwin of Moulton. It was stated that the boy bitten by the mad dog is now being given the pasteur treatment.

County Agent Will Meet October 13

The Morgan County Court will convene in Hartselle next Monday week, October 13, with Judge William T. Lowe, presiding.

The docket as now being made out by circuit court clerk J. L. Draper will require a four weeks term, according to estimates of officials.

The court has been postponed from time to time so as to leave the farmers free to work in their crops, rather than serving as witnesses and jurymen until the docket is a long one. Clerk Draper is expected to have the jury lists ready for publication within a few days.

House of Commons Has Stormy Row

(Associated Press)
LONDON, Sept. 30.—Stormy scenes occurred in the house of commons today during the questioning of Attorney General Patrick Hastings with regard to the mysterious abandoning of prosecution on the charge of sedition of the editor of the Communist paper Worker's Weekly.

Prime Minister MacDonald declared that he was not willing to allow an exposure, at this time of the real circumstances of the case and urged that further consideration of it be postponed until the regular autumn session of the house. To this all parties agreed.

Thus, the case, which has been more or less of a burning topic since early August, will be taken up by the house next week, while the house of lords is dealing with the Irish bill.

Pleads Not Guilty To Killing Woman

(Associated Press)
CHICAGO, Sept. 30.—A plea of not guilty was entered today by George Munding, proprietor of a Chicago riding academy, who yesterday shot and killed Mrs. Julia Douglass, pretty widow, and mistress of a riding academy at Hinsdale, Ill.

Munding was given a preliminary examination after he had admitted the shooting to detectives who arrested him as he raced from Mrs. Douglass' riding school, where the shooting occurred, to Chicago.

Jealousy of another man caused the shooting, police said.

GIBBONS LOST BOXING SHOES ON TONN OF COIN IN ENGLAND

LONDON—When Tom Gibbons returned to the United States after his victory over Bloomfield he was minus his boxing shoes, which became a prized possession of J. S. Gardner. The American boxer in gathering up his belongings packed only one of his shoes, the other being picked up later by Gardner. Gibbons discovered his loss and announced that he would be willing to toss a coin with the finder of the odd shoe to determine who should have both.

Hearing of the announcement, Gardner went to the Waterloo station when Gibbons was leaving and reminded the American of his offer. Telling of the result Gardner said:

"Gibbons was very sporting. He at once volunteered to toss and, producing a coin, threw it in the air, I said 'heads' and heads it was. It meant that Tom had to undo his baggage to give me the other shoe, but he made no bones about it. When I told him I would put both trophies up for auction for some charity he said 'Good boy; see that some poor kiddies get the benefit of what the shoes fetch.'"

SPORTS

ORGANIZATION OF INDEPENDENT OUTFIT PERFECTED AT Y. M. C. A.

With the probability that Coach Webb of Central and Coach Grimes of Riverside will be at the helm in coaching lines the independent mole skin organization pulled away to a flying start at a spirited meeting at the Y. M. C. A. Monday evening. Manager Arvidson will get in touch with similar outfits in neighboring cities and a full schedule will be arranged to take the place of the high school eleven who play most of their affrays on hostile grounds. The backing of the club has been assured by Master Mechanic Matthews of the Louisville and Nashville shops and the outfit will be known as the L. & N. Y. M. C. A. team.

Practice will be held for the first time on Wednesday afternoon at 4 o'clock on the old Cooper-Wells field and although the work will only be light for the preliminary workout it is expected that thirty men will report. Interest is running at a high point and the assurance that local fandom will see a bit of real pigskin ability displayed on the home field is in the appearance of some old time lights to bolster the hopes of the aggregation to be one of the best of its kind in the state.

Howard Lively, who was first spoken of as coach, will possibly be listed with the regulars and although it has been some years since he was forced to display his talents as a linesman it is a certainty that he will be a mainstay on the offense as well as a sterling man on the defense. "Red" Edwards will possibly be seen in the back field role. If size and weight mean anything it is assured that Red can be counted upon for yardage when yardage is needed. Donohue will be placed in a backfield position and is one of the clubs best prospects. Coach Webb also slated for pigskin packing qualities. Turney, Speer, Shelton and Hodson have reported for plugging the holes in the line. Speer is well known locally for the talent he displayed while Hodson will possibly be in the lineup as a flankman. Shelton will try out at an end.

Manager Arvidson is busy today arranging for the schedule and equipment and is looking forward to a big year in the history of athletics with the local Y. M. C. A.

All men who desire to tryout for the independent team are requested to be on time at the Cooper-Wells field on Wednesday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

An automobile headlight comprising a substantially cylindrical casing open at its front end, a removable lens closing said front end, a substantially parabolic reflector disposed diagonally within the casing in a forwardly and upwardly inclined position, a forwardly and outwardly inclined flat bottom closing the lower side of said reflector, the upper end of said bottom terminating in spaced relation from the corresponding end of the parabolically shaped reflector and being bent laterally downward from the latter to provide a substantially semi-circular shutter, the inner surface of said bottom being covered with light reflecting material, a lamp disposed within the reflector at the lower end thereof and spaced above the juncture of the lower end of the bottom with the corresponding end of the main reflector, means pivotally connecting the forward and upper end of said reflector to said casing, and adjusting means for the lower end of the reflector interposed between the latter and the casing.

Patent No. 1,508,904. LUGGAGE CARRIER FOR AUTOMOBILES. Elton J. Van Fleet.

A luggage carrier comprising a side wall, a rod engaging said side wall, and a pair of jaws operated by said rod.

Patent No. 1,508,864. MEANS FOR THAWING AUTOMOBILE RADIATORS. Guy White.

1. The combination with a radiator for automobiles having an upper header, a lower header and a water passage connecting said headers, of a steam conduit applied to the lower end of said water passage and extending through a wall of said lower header, the exterior portion of said conduit extending across the radiator and having discharge openings for directing the steam against the same.

Patent No. 1,508,693. STOP SIGNAL FOR AUTOMOBILES. Clydus Grove.

1. An automobile signal comprising a U-shaped bracket having an aperture midway the cross bar thereof to receive a fastening bolt, a pintle passing through the free ends of the arms of said bracket and having one end extended at right angles and bent to form an eye, a plate mounted on said pintle and having a lug extending laterally from one end thereof and engaged with the bent end of the pintle to provide for the turning of the plate on the turning of the pintle, coiled springs connecting said plate and bracket and adapted to normally hold the plate in raised position, and means connected with said pintle eye for swinging the plate downward in a plane at right angles to the bracket against the tension of the spring.

Democrats inclined to be talkative might obey the injunction of the black-face comedian to put their money "where their mouth is."

Wonder if young Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, when he resigned as assistant secretary of the navy, thought about the old adage, "from the frying pan into the fire."

NEWSPAPER DISCOUNTS GUESSES ON OUTCOME OF THE ELECTIONS

The Columbia Daily Herald finds the guesses of the political correspondents on the outcome of the November election rather amusing. The Herald says the situation reminds the writer of a Methodist conference held by the late Bishop Charles B. Galloway. As the day for announcement of the conference appointments neared, press correspondents hazarded many guesses as to where certain preachers would be sent.

Finally, on appointment day, Bishop Galloway arose, and with twinkling eye, looked the correspondents in the face and said:

"For a week you boys have been making the appointments for this conference. Now I am going to make them, but there is this difference: Your appointments have hardly lasted twenty-four hours, while mine are going to be in effect for a year."

It is a hard matter for newspaper readers to swallow literally all of the political forecasts which come into existence about this time of the fall every fourth year. We must remember, however, that there are trained reporters, who really make a study of political situations and who do, honestly, and frankly tell the people what their studies disclose.

Of course much propaganda is given to the press by the publicity bureaus of all of the major political parties. To the credit of the press, however, practically all such propaganda is so labeled and readers are permitted to read it with as large amount of salt as they desire.

The signed articles by the political reporters, after all, are merely guesses by the author on the outcome of the campaign, but still a guess by a reporter trained in the art of observation may run somewhat truer to form than we suspect.

TRAINING FOR OFFICE HOLDING SHOULD BE HAD, AND EXPECTED

One of the many reasons, many officials make such a poor out is the fact that so many of them have had little or no training for public service. They know entirely too little about what is expected of them. And on the other hand the people generally expect entirely too little of their officials. The question is seldom asked by a voter, "Does the candidate know anything about the job he offers for?" One of the foremost women of the country, Miss Anna Gordon, who was the private secretary of Miss Frances E. Willard, and who has visited the Twin Cities as a public speaker, has the following to say on the question:

"For Whom Shall I Vote?"
"When a woman goes to an employment agency to engage a maid or a governess, she usually has a definite idea as to the qualifications she desires in such employees. When a man advertises for a chauffeur or a book-keeper, he has in mind certain requirements that must be met by the applicants. But when a voting citizen considers the candidates for whom he is to cast his ballot on election day, too often he thinks little about the type of man or woman to be chosen, and his knowledge of their fitness is exceedingly vague. He would consider himself a poor business man if he failed to give serious consideration to do his work, but he bestows scant thought upon the character of qualifications of the individuals whom he is selecting to protect his home, his property, his life and the lives of his family, or who are to make and unmake the laws."

Where men have been chosen for office, who for one reason or another have not prepared themselves to conduct the particular office to which they have been elected, it becomes their duty to prepare themselves as best they may for the discharge of their public duties.

WITH THE ELECTION ONLY A FEW WEEKS AWAY

In something over five weeks November 4, the national election day will dawn, and from now until that time as has been the case for months, the air will be full of boasts, denials, claims, analyses, repudiations, straw votes, statements of press agents and stump speeches. In the states where the issue is doubtful many speeches will be made.

Let us be duly thankful that in Alabama there will be no stump speeches, no press agent claims, and precious little of the denial repudiation business. In the state of "here we rest," the matter as to who will get Alabama's electoral vote was settled a long while ago.

Nobody has the slightest idea what the LaFollette vote will be, but despite claims of the Literary Digest figurer, John W. Davis will run ahead of the Wisconsin senator, and moreover, stranger things have happened than the election of Davis by a big landslide.

Once the LaFollette claims are thoroughly discredited as they are sure to be, many who wish Coolidge beaten—as he should be—will seek to save their vote and their country, by helping produce a landslide of the West Virginian.

Bright days are ahead for the Democrats. The infamous Daugherty letter has helped a good cause some, and hurt the Republican chances.

The great popularity of Davis, as proven in the west during his recent speaking trip out there, may be the beginning of better things all over the nation. Davis has been able to stir up enthusiasm, and if he can keep the good work going, he will be leading within a month's time.

He has projected his personality, and it has suited the people. They see in Mr. Davis, many of the noble traits of character that made Woodrow Wilson immortal. The people have seen in Davis, a man that, while he knows Wall street from end to end, he does not fear Wall street and he is not to be dominated by men who control the "street."

Mr. Davis has been called upon to undertake a Herculean task, and he has tackled it in a manly way and in the strength of ten, because his motives are pure.

Davis has been and remains on the offensive, the Republicans have been and remain on the defensive. If the people are wide awake—if they realize that eternal vigilance is indeed the price of liberty, they will vote for Mr. Davis to a man and in their way of thinking hundreds of thousands of people of good will, who will vote as often as the law allow for John W. Davis, November 4.

STORMING THE COLLEGE GATE

Reports from nearly all the leading colleges and universities of the United States show, for the year just begun, greatly increased enrollments of students. In those institutions where the size of the student body is arbitrarily limited, applications for admission far exceed the quotas fixed. At Harvard, incomplete figures show an enrollment of more than 300 in excess of last year's totals. At Columbia, with a total enrollment of approximately 35,000, the largest classes in the history of that university have taken up the work of the year. Interesting comparison was made on the opening day between this number and that of the first class enrolled in the year 1754, and taught solely by Dr. Samuel Johnson, first president and the only faculty member of what was then known as King's College. Then "eight gentlemen students" represented the entire undergraduate body.

At Yale the registration for the year is approximately 4,000. Of this number about 850 are freshmen, this quota being adhered to despite the fact that three times that many candidates sought admission. Official figures from Wisconsin University are not yet available, but it is indicated that the enrollment will reach, or pass, last year's total of 7,300. At Ann Arbor, the seat of the University of Michigan, incomplete figures indicate an enrollment of approximately 13,000, which is the same as last year. At Brown University, Providence, R. I., the enrollment is limited to 1,200. Of this number about 400 are freshmen, selected by prescribed tests from a much larger number.

Much more than mere material prosperity seems to be indicated by this voluntary storming of the college gates. It is a friendly, though a determined assault. The movement is, not in response to some momentary impulse or whim, neither is it indicative of a willingness of prosperous parents to spend large sums upon the aimless education of their children. It would be interesting in this connection to know how many of these determined students, some of whom may have failed to come within the quotas prescribed, are learning, or seeking to learn, their way while striving for an education. The number is not small, as all who have some knowledge of student affairs are aware.

What impelling motive is it, then, that is so plainly emphasized with the return of each succeeding college entrance period? It is encouraging to believe that there is being convincingly manifested an increasing determination on the part of the youth of America to equip itself properly for the part it hopes to undertake in the constructive work of the world. There are indications that a great awakening is taking place. It is realized that only by adherence to the fundamentals upon which democracy is founded can the imposing superstructure that has been erected be maintained and safeguarded. Education is the first step in preparation for this needed service. It is from the colleges and universities that the men and women equipped and ready to render this service have come. It is there, largely, that the hope of the future lies. It is the enlightened and fortified man or woman who must go into the world to destroy the citadel of arrogance and the flimsy fetish of provincial hatred and distrust.

It is true that this laudable purpose manifested by the young men and young women of the United States is being aided and encouraged by the national prosperity of which all Americans boast. But all this wealth would be worse than wasted if any part of it were to be devoted to the superficial or false education of the youth of the land. Realizing this, there may well come to those who are presidents, professors and instructors in the universities a stern realization of the responsibilities which are theirs.—Christian Science Monitor.

'Attacks Mother's Doctor.

After her mother had died under treatment of Dr. Alexander Weir, of Chicago, Rosalie O'Reilly, pretty daughter of the dead woman, went to the physician's office, and, according to charges, attempted to kill him with drugs and a gun. She insists she is sane and declares the doctor poisoned her mother.

Hartselle News

M. C. H. S. MET HARTSELLE TOWN LAST FRIDAY AFTERNOON

The M. C. H. S. football team met the town team in a contest on the high school field last Friday afternoon and the town team succeeded in administering a defeat of 20 to 0. The town team was considerably heavier than the regular team, and was composed of former players who are now graduates of this school.

Prominent players of the town team were, Louie Ellison, Red Thompson, Coy Stephenson, Candler Cain, Leonard Hartselle, Thomas and McRee. The regular team proved too much for the young M. C. H. S. team, and presented a line that the school players could not penetrate for any appreciable gains. Red Garrison for the school team played a fast game, and made practically all of the gains carrying the ball for much yardage during the progress of the game.

Many pretty passes attempted by the town team were intercepted by the fast work of M. C. H. S. players. The regular team will show up well when a few of the kinks are ironed out, and the game of Friday afternoon put them on their mettle, and revealed to them what they would have to overcome when they get down to regular business.

Coffee High comes for the first real contest of the season next Friday afternoon, and between now and that occasion, every effort will be made to have the team in condition to make a formidable showing.

The ginning season is now on in full blast here, the three gins running all day and part of the night. Considerably over a hundred bales of seed cotton is being received each day, and since the return in the price of the staple, farmers are willing to sell. Prior to the last few days much of the cotton was stored, anticipating a better price.

Plans have been formulated for the coming of the Radcliffe Chatauqua on October 7, 8 and 9. Season tickets have been distributed among various ones who are to solicit sales, and it is expected that a large number will be sold between now and the opening late.

During the last thirty days four car loads of sugar has been received here by a local broker the fourth car being received Saturday. All of it was distributed among the merchants here.

Chief of Police-elect, Newt Hendrix of Albany was a visitor here Saturday.

Mrs. Donnie West left for her home at Nashville, Tenn., Monday, after two weeks spent with her son Adlai West and family.

A pretty children's day service was held at the First M. E. church South last Sunday, being under the supervision of Mrs. R. W. Anderson and Mrs. Lewis Houston. The program rendered at that time was creditable in deed, and reflected much effort upon the part of those who had it in charge. This day is observed the fourth Sunday in each month, the pastor Rev. R. W. Anderson giving over his service each fourth Sunday morning that this service may be held. After the children's exercises were over, the pastor delivered to them an instructive talk, after reading scripture bearing on the exercises of the day.

FAKE EARTHQUAKE REPORTS BACK UP FALSE PREDICTION

WASHINGTON—A false report of an earthquake, issued apparently for the purpose of attempting to justify a faulty seismic prediction, is interesting scientists here. Rome dispatches published by the United States and in Europe early in June announced the receipt at the Italian capital of reports from Yugoslavia of a sharp earthquake in the Balkans where, it was stated, houses were crumbled and some casualties occurred. The reports said the center of the earth movement seemed to be near Mostar, Herzegovina.

Prof. G. Agamennone, director of the Italian national seismological observatory at Rocca di Papa, near Rome has communicated with the Georgetown University seismological observatory here, saying the earth movement was not recorded in Italy where any such quake would have registered on seismographs and that, in reply to a letter, the director of the observatory at Belgrade, Serbia, stated no such earthquake was recorded there on the date in question.

A Croatian newspaper pointed out in connection with the report that the earthquake fulfilled one of the predictions made by Raphael Bendandi, a Fuenza, seismologist, that the Balkan peninsula, from Monday, June 8, and thenceforth would receive many shocks from earthquakes, especially the districts of Bosnia and Herzegovina.

of this county, who later became a joint publisher of a Chattanooga, Tenn., daily paper, and died in that city several years ago.

The G. D. Scott Shows came Monday morning for a week's showing which will be at the grounds of the Morgan County Fair grounds one mile north of town.

The Falkville football team went to Arab last Friday and proved too much for the Sand Mountain boys bringing back a victory 20-0. The Falkville team is a husky lot of players, and average well over 160 pounds.

The funeral of Mrs. John W. Orr was held Sunday afternoon from the Church of Christ, with interment in city cemetery. Mrs. Orr had been in bad health for a long time, and suffered much. Death came Saturday night.

Mrs. B. S. Stover who underwent an operation at Benevolent hospital several days ago, and was able to be brought home suffered a relapse one day recently and was carried back to the hospital, where it was found necessary to perform another operation. She was in a very precarious condition when last reports from the hospital was received.

Miss Ruth West returned home with her grandmother, Mrs. Donnie West last Monday afternoon, to Nashville, Tenn. She will spend two weeks in that Tennessee city.

OUTSTANDING PERSONS IN THE NEWS.

Below: BISHOP EDGAR BLAKE and JULIUS FLEISCHMANN, mrs.

For his diligence in helping the police run down the bandits who robbed his wife of valuable jewels, Albert R. Shattuck, of New York, has been made a Deputy Police Commissioner by Police Commissioner Enright, of New York City. Mrs. Eulalia B. Thompson, of Kansas City, Mo., says Bob Shawkey, famous pitcher of the New York American League club, promised to marry her and then changed his mind. She has sued for $25,000. Bishop Edgar Blake, of the Methodist Episcopal Church, has gone to Russia to personally express his approval of the separation of the present living Church of Russia from the old Tichonian Church. Julius Fleischmann, of Long Island and New York City, played the part of host to the British polo players most successfully.

County Agent Will Meet October 13

The Morgan County Court will convene in Hartselle next Monday week, October 13, with Judge William T. Lowe, presiding.

The docket as now being made out by circuit court clerk J. L. Draper will require a four weeks term, according to estimates of officials.

The court has been postponed from time to time so as to leave the farmers free to work in their crops, rather than serving as witnesses and jurymen until the docket is a long one. Clerk Draper is expected to have the jury lists ready for publication within a few days.

House of Commons Has Stormy Row

(Associated Press)
LONDON, Sept. 30.—Stormy scenes occurred in the house of commons today during the questioning of Attorney General Patrick Hastings with regard to the mysterious abandoning of prosecution on the charge of sedition of the editor of the Communist paper Worker's Weekly.

Prime Minister MacDonald declared that he was not willing to allow an exposure, at this time of the real circumstances of the case and urged that further consideration of it be postponed until the regular autumn session of the house. To this all parties agreed.

Thus, the case, which has been more or less of a burning topic since early August, will be taken up by the house next week, while the house of lords is dealing with the Irish bill.

Pleads Not Guilty To Killing Woman

(Associated Press)
CHICAGO, Sept. 30.—A plea of not guilty was entered today by George Munding, proprietor of a Chicago riding academy, who yesterday shot and killed Mrs. Julia Douglass, pretty widow, and mistress of a riding academy at Hinsdale, Ill.

Munding was given a preliminary examination after he had admitted the shooting to detectives who arrested him as he raced from Mrs. Douglass' riding school, where the shooting occurred, to Chicago.

Jealousy of another man caused the shooting, police said.

GIBBONS LOST BOXING SHOES ON TOSSE OF COIN IN ENGLAND

LONDON.—When Tom Gibbons returned to the United States after his victory over Bloomfield he was minus his boxing shoes, which became a prized possession of J. S. Gardner. The American boxer in gathering up his belongings packed only one of his shoes, the other being picked up later by Gardner. Gibbons discovered his loss and announced that he would be willing to toss a coin with the finder of the odd shoe to determine who should have both.

Hearing of the announcement, Gardner went to the Waterloo station when Gibbons was leaving and reminded the American of his offer. Telling of the result Gardner said:

"Gibbons was very sporting. He at once volunteered to toss and, producing a coin, threw it in the air. I said 'heads' and heads it was. It meant that Tom had to undo his baggage to give me the other shoe, but he made no bones about it. When I told him I would put both trophies up for auction for some charity he said 'Good boy; see that some poor kiddies get the benefit of what the shoes fetch.'"

ORGANIZATION OF INDEPENDENT OUTFIT PERFECTED AT Y. M. C. A.

With the probability that Coach Webb of Central and Coach Grimes of Riverside will be at the helm in coaching lines the independent moleskin aggregation pulled away to a flying start at a spirited meeting at the Y. M. C. A. Monday evening. Manager Arvidson will get in touch with similar outfits in neighboring cities and a full schedule will be arranged to take the place of the high school eleven who play most of their affrays on hostile grounds. The backing of the club has been assured by Master Mechanic Matthews of the Louisville and Nashville shops and the outfit will be known as the L. & N. Y. M. C. A. team.

Practice will be held for the first time on Wednesday afternoon at 4 o'clock on the old Cooper-Wells field and although the work will only be light for the preliminary workout it is expected that thirty men will report. Interest is running at a high point and the assurance that local fandom will see a bit of real pigskin ability displayed on the home field in the appearance of some old time lights to bolster the hopes of the aggregation to be one of the best of its kind in the state.

Howard Lively, who was first spoken of as coach, will possibly be listed with the regulars and although it has been some years since he was forced to display his talents as a linesman it is a certainty that he will be a mainstay on the offense as well as a sterling man on the defense. "Red" Edwards will possibly be seen in the back field role. If size and weight

The Columbia Daily Herald finds the guesses of the political correspondents on the outcome of the November election rather amusing. The Herald says the situation reminds the writer of a Methodist conference held by the late Bishop Charles B. Galloway. As the day for announcement of the conference appointments neared, press correspondents hazarded many guesses as to where certain preachers would be sent.

Finally, on appointment day, Bishop Galloway arose, and with twinkling eye, looked the correspondents in the face and said:

"For a week you boys have been making the appointments for this conference. Now I am going to make them, but there is this difference: Your appointments have hardly lasted twenty-four hours, while mine are going to be in effect for a year."

It is a hard matter for newspaper readers to swallow literally all of the political forecasts which come into existence about this time of the fall every fourth year. We must remember, however, that there are trained reporters, who really make a study of political situations and who do, honestly, and frankly tell the people what their studies disclose.

Of course much propaganda is given to the press by the publicity bureaus of all of the major political parties. To the credit of the press, however, practically all such propaganda is so labelled and readers are permitted to read it with as large amount of salt as they desire.

The signed articles by the political reporters, after all, are merely guesses by the author on the outcome of the campaign, but still a guess by a reporter trained in the art of observation may run somewhat truer to form than we suspect.

TRAINING FOR OFFICE HOLDING SHOULD BE HAD, AND EXPECTED

One of the many reasons, many officials make such a poor out is the fact that so many of them have had little or no training for public service. They know entirely too little about what is expected of them. And on the other hand the people generally expect entirely too little of their officials. The question is seldom asked by a voter, "Does the candidate know anything about the job he offers for?" One of the foremost women of the country, Miss Anna Gordon, who was the private secretary of Miss Frances E. Willard, and who has visited the Twin Cities as a public speaker, has the following to say on the question:

"When a woman goes to an employment agency to engage a maid or a governess, she usually has a definite idea as to the qualifications she desires in such employees. When a man advertises for a chauffeur or a book-keeper, he has in mind certain requirements that must be met by the applicants. But when a voting citizen considers the candidates for whom he is to cast his ballot on election day, too often he thinks little about the type of man or woman to be chosen, and his knowledge of their fitness is exceedingly vague. He would consider himself a poor business man if he failed to give serious consideration to do his work, but he bestows scant thought upon the character of qualifications of the individuals whom he is selecting to protect his home, his property, his life and the lives of his family, or who are to make and unmake the laws."

Where men have been chosen for office, who for one reason or another have not prepared themselves to conduct the particular office to which they have been elected, it becomes their duty to prepare themselves as best they may for the discharge of their public duties.

WITH THE ELECTION ONLY A FEW WEEKS AWAY

In something over five weeks November 4, the national election day will dawn, and from now until that time as has been the case for months, the air will be full of boasts, denials, claims, analyses, repudiations, straw votes, statements of press agents and stump speeches. In the states where the issue is doubtful many speeches will be made.

Let us be duly thankful that in Alabama there will be no stump speeches, no press agent claims, and precious little of the denial repudiation business. In the state of "here we rest," the matter as to who will get Alabama's electoral vote was settled a long while ago.

Nobody has the slightest idea what the LaFollette vote will be, but despite claims of the Literary Digest figurer, John W. Davis will run ahead of the Wisconsin senator, and moreover, stranger things have happened than the election of Davis by a big landslide.

Once the LaFollette claims are thoroughly discredited as they are sure to be, many who wish Coolidge beaten—as he should be—will seek to save their vote and their country, by helping produce a landslide of the West Virginian.

Bright days are ahead for the Democrats. The infamous Daugherty letter has helped a good cause some, and hurt the Republican chances.

The great popularity of Davis, as proven in the west during his recent speaking trip out there, may be the beginning of better things all over the nation. Davis has been able to stir up enthusiasm, and if he can keep the good work going, he will be leading within a month's time.

He has projected his personality, and it has suited the people. They see in Mr. Davis, many of the noble traits of character that made Woodrow Wilson immortal. The people have seen in Davis, a man that, while he knows Wall street from end to end, he does not fear Wall street and he is not to be dominated by men who control the "street."

Mr. Davis has been called upon to undertake a Herculean task, and he has tackled it in a manly way and in the strength of ten, because his motives are pure.

Davis has been and remains on the offensive, the Republicans have been and remain on the defensive. If the people are wide awake—if they realize that eternal vigilance is indeed the price of liberty, they will vote for Mr. Davis to a man, and draw into their thousands of people of good will, who will vote as often as the law allow for John W. Davis, November 4.

STORMING THE COLLEGE GATE

Reports from nearly all the leading colleges and universities of the United States show, for the year just begun, greatly increased enrollments of students. In those institutions where the size of the student body is arbitrarily limited, applications for admission far exceed the quotas fixed. At Harvard, incomplete figures show an enrollment of more than 300 in excess of last year's totals. At Columbia, with a total enrollment of approximately 35,000, the largest classes in the history of that university have taken up the work of the year. Interesting comparison was made on the opening day between this number and that of the first class enrolled in the year 1754, and taught solely by Dr. Samuel Johnson, first president and the only faculty member of what was then known as King's College. Then "eight gentlemen students" represented the entire undergraduate body.

At Yale the registration for the year is approximately 4,000. Of this number about 850 are freshmen, this quota being adhered to despite the fact that three times that many candidates sought admission. Official figures from Wisconsin University are not yet available, but it is indicated that the enrollment will reach, or pass, last year's total of 7,800. At Ann Arbor, the seat of the University of Michigan, incomplete figures indicate an enrollment of approximately 13,000, which is the same as last year. At Brown University, Providence, R. I., the enrollment is limited to 1,200. Of this number about 400 are freshmen, selected by prescribed tests from a much larger number.

Much more than mere material prosperity seems to be indicated by this voluntary storming of the college gates. It is a friendly, though a determined assault. The movement is not in response to some momentary impulse or whim, neither is it indicative of a willingness of prosperous parents to spend large sums upon the aimless education of their children. It would be interesting in this connection to know how many of these determined students, some of whom may have failed to come within the quotas prescribed, are learning, or seeking to earn, their way while striving for an education. The number is not small, as all who have some knowledge of student affairs are aware.

What impelling motive is it, then, that is so plainly emphasized with the return of each succeeding college entrance period? It is encouraging to believe that there is being convincingly manifested an increasing determination on the part of the youth of America to equip itself properly for the part it hopes to undertake in the constructive work of the world. There are indications that a great awakening is taking place. It is realized that only by adherence to the fundamentals upon which democracy is founded can the imposing superstructure that has been erected be maintained and safeguarded. Education is the first step in preparation for this needed service. It is from the colleges and universities that the men and women equipped and ready to render this service have come. It is there, largely, that the hope of the future lies. It is the enlightened and fortified man or woman who must go into the world to destroy the citadel of arrogance and the flimsy fetish of provincial hatred and distrust.

It is true that this laudable purpose manifested by the young men and young women of the United States is being aided and encouraged by the national prosperity of which all Americans boast. But all this wealth would be worse than wasted if any part of it were to be devoted to the superficial or false education of the youth of the land. Realizing this, there may well come to those who are presidents, professors and instructors in the universities a stern realization of the responsibilities which are theirs.—Christian Science Monitor.

M. C. H. S. MET HARTSELLE TOWN LAST FRIDAY AFTERNOON

The M. C. H. S. football team met the town team in a contest on the high school field last Friday afternoon and the town team succeeded in administering a defeat of 20 to 0. The town team was considerably heavier than the regular team, and was composed of former players who are now graduates of this school.

Prominent players of the town team were, Louie Ellison, Red Thompson, Coy Stephenson, Candler Cain, Leonard Hartselle, Thomas and McRee, whose backs were too much for the young M. C. H. S. team, and presented a line that the school players could not penetrate for any appreciable gains. Red Garrison for the school team played a fast game, and made practically all of the gains carrying the ball for much yardage during the progress of the game.

Many pretty passes attempted by the town team were intercepted by the fast work of M. C. H. S. players. The regular team will show up well when a few of the kinks are ironed out, and the game of Friday afternoon put them on their mettle, and revealed to them what they would have to overcome when they get down to regular business.

Coffee High comes for the first real contest of the season next Friday afternoon, and between now and that occasion, every effort will be made to have the team in condition to make a formidable showing.

The ginning season is now on in full blast here, the three gins running all day and part of the night. Considerably over a hundred bales of seed cotton is being received each day, and since the return in the price of the staple, farmers are willing to sell. Prior to the last few days much of the cotton was stored, anticipating a better price.

Plans have been formulated for the coming of the Radcliffe Chautauqua on October 7, 8 and 9. Season tickets have been distributed among various ones who are to solicit sales, and it is expected that a large number will be sold between now and the opening late.

A pretty children's day service was held at the First M. E. church South last Sunday, being under the supervision of Mrs. R. W. Anderson and Mrs. Lewis Houston. The program rendered at that time as creditable in deed, and reflected much effort upon the part of those who had it in charge. This day is observed the fourth Sunday in each month, the pastor Rev. R. W. Anderson giving over his service each fourth Sunday morning that this service may be held. After the children's exercises were over, the pastor delivered to them an instructive talk, after reading scripture bearing on the exercises of the day.

FAKE EARTHQUAKE REPORTS BACK UP FALSE PREDICTION

WASHINGTON—A false report of an earthquake, issued apparently for the purpose of attempting to justify a faulty seismic prediction, is interesting scientists here. Rome dispatches published in the United States and in Europe early in June announced the receipt at the Italian capital of reports from Yugoslavia of a sharp earthquake in the Balkans where, it was stated, houses were crumbled and some casualties occurred. The reports said the center of the earth movement seemed to be near Mostar, Herzegovina.

Prof. G. Agamennone, director of the Italian national seismological observatory at Rocca di Papa, near Rome has communicated with the Georgetown University seismological observatory here, saying the earth movement was not recorded in Italy where any such quake would have registered on seismographs and that, in reply to a letter, the director of the observatory at Belgrade, Serbia, stated no such earthquake was recorded there on the date in question.

A Croatian newspaper pointed out in connection with the report that the earthquake fulfilled one of the predictions made by Raphael Bendandi, a Faenza, seismologist, that the Balkan peninsula, from Monday, June 9, and thenceforth would receive many shocks from earthquakes, especially the districts of Bosnia and Herzegovina.

of this county, who later became a joint publisher of a Chattanooga, Tenn., daily paper, and died in that city several years ago.

The G. D. Scott Shows came Monday morning for a week's showing which will be at the grounds of the Morgan County Fair grounds one mile north of town.

The funeral of Mrs. John W. Orr was held Sunday afternoon from the Church of Christ, with interment in city cemetery. Mrs. Orr had been in bad health for a long time, and suffered much. Death came Saturday night.

Mrs. B. S. Sliver who underwent an operation at Benevolent hospital several days ago, and was able to be brought home suffered a relapse one day recently and was carried back to the hospital, where it was found necessary to perform another operation. She was in a very precarious condition when last reports from the hospital was received.

Miss Ruth West returned home with her grandmother, Mrs. Donnie West last Monday afternoon, to Nashville, Tenn. She will spend two weeks in that Tennessee city.

Wardlow, Mrs. White, Mrs. John Garrison, Mrs. Jones, Mrs. Ernest Walker, Mrs. Flim; Mrs. Robert Winton, Mrs. Marks; Mrs. Seneca Burr, Mrs. Hicks; Mrs. Mason Crow, Mrs. Dimp; Mrs. A. L. Frazier, Sophie, the maid. It was a very humorous sketch and all proved themselves very good actresses.

A splendid musical program was rendered by the girls W. M. U. who were also guests of the circle.
The home was beautifully decorated with golden glow and chrysanthemums and at the close of the program delicious refreshments consisting of ice cream, cake and mints were passed.

OPENING OF KINDERGARTEN

The Kindergarten which was founded under the auspices of the Albany-Decatur Mothers Club will be formally opened on Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock when the club will give an informal tea in the kindergarten room in the Y. M. C. A. building. This will take place in connection with the regular meeting of the Mothers Club and all members and their friends who are interested in this work are cordially invited and urged to attend.

The committee has been fortunate enough to secure the services of Miss Frances Himes as instructress. Miss Himes is especially well fitted for this work having spent the past winter and spring in the national kindergarten school in Chicago, Ill., in preparation. She will begin the regular work on Monday October 6th.

BENEVOLENT SOCIETY TO MEET

The Benevolent Society will hold a very important meeting on Wednesday at 3 p. m. in the office of the Malone Garage on Second avenue.

Reverend and Mrs. Walter McGlawn request the honor of your presence at the marriage of their daughter, Willie Marie to Mr. Joseph Robert Ross on Wednesday evening October 11 at seven o'clock at the First Methodist church, Decatur, Alabama. At home Cullman, Alabama.

This wedding is to be one of the social events of the early fall.

MISSIONARY SOCIETY CENTRAL M. E. CHURCH. PRESIDENT, MRS. J. L. GUNTER. HOSTESS MRS. W. R. SMITH

The Missionary Society of the Central Methodist church assembled with Mrs. W. R. Smith Monday afternoon in social session. Bowls of rich fall roses decorated the tables of the dining and living rooms. The afternoon was opened by the singing of a sweet old gospel hymn followed by the devotion led by Mrs. Carswell. Mrs. Rose prayed a very earnest and fervent prayer. The president, Mrs. Gunter called for business reports. Since conference is at hand no programme had been arranged for this meeting but a rare musical treat was in store.

Mrs. H. O. Troup and Miss Margaret Clarkson graciously consenting to give a few numbers.

Mrs. Troup gave the first number, an Arabesque, as the pianist, with closed eyes slipped into the composers mood the attention of each one was wrapt. Her encore was "Jubal" a beautiful classic.

Miss Clarkson then gave an exquisite bit of "Visa D'Arte" from La Tosca. As her marvelous voice swelled into its fullness yet gaining in beauty of tone and color there came into the hearts of her listeners a strange feeling of exultation that the pleadings of poor "Floria" were heard. When the voice ceased there followed a hush, a period of quiet, as the listeners groped from the heights to which they had been carried on the beautiful waves of tone to earth again burst into a storm of applause. The encore was a little love song in English that was equally as beautiful in its simplicity and afforded the listeners an opportunity to hear how well the singer could render the simple melodies of the day. By request the artist graciously gave our favorite "The Last Rose of Summer." The golden qualities for which her voice has always been remarkable showed to a rare advantage in this beautiful number.

This closed the programme, a social hour followed when Mrs. Smith always the gracious hostess served ices assisted by several members of the society.

BEREAN CLUB

The first fall meeting of the Berean club will be held on Wednesday, October 1st at the home of Mrs. W. B. Shackelford on Ferry street.

This is presidents day and all officers of the club will assist in receiving. Several local artists will render an interesting program.

Mrs. M. B. Mahan of Beaumont, Texas is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. P. P. Plemons.

Miss Marie Parham of Nashville, Tenn., is visiting Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Lovin.

Miss Nannie B. Baker of Mobile is the guest of Dr. and Mrs. J. D. Hunter and Dr. W. N. McDonald of Birmingham. Dean of the Institute is visiting in the home of Mrs. J. J. Rose, while in the city attending the training institute at the Central Methodist church.

Mrs. Mollie Whitman and family of Mt. Hope have returned home after a visit to Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Whitman.

Misses Florence and Pearl Bassett, of Birmingham are expected here today on their way to Columbus, Ohio, where they will visit their brother, Charles Bassett. Gus Bassett will join his sisters here and accompany them as far as Nashville.

Methodists On October 15
Will Honor Bishop Asbury

WASHINGTON—A bronze statue of Bishop Francis Asbury, pioneer Methodist in this country, will be erected here with appropriate ceremonies Oct. 15. Augustus Lukeman, of New York, is the sculptor. Representatives of various Methodist churches over the world have been invited and a reception will be tendered them on the eve of the unveiling.

The statue, which is to cost some $60,000, has been cast in bronze and will portray the militant bishop seated on a horse, with saddle bags containing books and articles of clothing as he traveled in the flesh from the coast to the western edge of the wilderness, preaching the gospel.

Francis Asbury came from England to America in 1771, by appointment of John Wesley, to do missionary work.

AMUSEMENTS

"Acting to me means action. I can't do my best work unless the story is interesting. If it is, why I'm ready to assume all responsibility for my work."

In these words Henry B. Walthall celebrated the announcement that he had been selected for the featured role of John M. Stahl's "One Clear Call" which is the current First National attraction at the Princess theater. Depicting turbid events in the usually placid existence of a small Alabama town, the story provides the actor with the kind of a part which, according to his statement, he is capable of giving a superb performance in. Among the many difficult feats Walthall was called upon for during the filming of this production were: escaping from a gang of clan riders, racing along with a train, and dodging an automobile so as to escape by a fraction of an inch. In addition to these action scenes he had to play for emotional moments depicting sincerely but simply

A WIFE'S CONFESSIONAL

Adele Garrison's New Phase of Revelations of a Wife

The Decision Made About Hugh Grantland.

As if controlled by something entirely outside myself, I sprang to my feet at my boy's call and rushed to the door. "Mother's here, Junior," I said through its panels. "But I can't come out to you now. Run away and play with Marion until I come."

I did not analyze the emotion within me which peremptorily bade this dismissal of my little lad. Indeed, I dared not. I knew only that I could not talk to his child—and Dicky's—until I had threshed out with myself the course I meant to pursue concerning the queer frightening letter from Hugh Grantland that lay in my hands.

Not that there was any memory of speech or word in all my association with Hugh Grantland which would have caused me to lower my eyes over so slightly before either Junior's clear gaze or his father's critical one. But there were memories of that unusual friendship, which, while together innocent, were yet strangely disturbing, even poignant, if I accepted as truth the letter in my hands.

I felt that I must drag them out from the recesses of my soul, face them squarely and forever banish them unless I could find in them some spark of an idea which might aid me in solving the mystery of the letter Major Grantland had written me.

My little lad's voice sounded. "But I want you, Ma-ma!"

The pleading tones tugged at my heart insistently. But something even more important than my desire to look out my problem, was now involved. I am trying to teach Junior to know that teasing will never secure the granting of a request, and my voice was firm though tender, as I answered him.

"If You Tease—"

"Junior," I said slowly and clearly, "if you tease, I shall not come to play with you all day. But if you obey me now, I will be only a few minutes before I come to you."

There was a silence of a few seconds while Junior evidently weighed the pros and cons of my ultimatum. Then with an audible little sigh which came near to breaking down my determination, he accepted the inevitable.

"All right," he said soberly, and I heard his reluctant little feet walking slowly toward the stairs.

A sudden resentment toward the insensate letter in my hand showed me. Because of it, I had shut my little lad away from me for the first time in his life—then with a sudden remorseful flash of memory, I faced the truth that my baby boy would have been forever lost to me had it not been for the great heart and brain and dogged persistence of the man who had penned the strange letter to me.

I had forgiven Dicky long ago for his part in that awful time, but I could not forget that it was his absence on a motor outing with Edith Fairfax which made it possible for Grace Draper to spirit away our baby. And I had had plenty of opportunity to contrast that negligence with the tireless furious energy of Hugh Grantland when he had rushed to my determination, the receipt of my message to him—an energy that never had flagged until he put Junior in my arms.

Then, only waiting to assure me that every time he changed his address in his adventurous life he would send me a card, he had gone.

FEMINISMS

AFTER YEARS OF LOWER LIFE THE FAMILY'S WAIST LINES MOVE UP —BUT ONLY TWO ARE IN THE VERY LATEST FASHION

WINIFRED BLACK WRITES ABOUT A Key to Popularity

Copyright, 1924, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

WERE you visiting this Summer or did you stay at home and receive visitors? It may be that both fortunes have been yours. There are all degrees of visitors. Men as a rule do not make great successes when they go a-visiting, possibly they are too much absorbed in their own affairs, and then men like to have an easy time in camp or on the road without the fuss and feathers of dress, which play so large a part in the programme of the ordinary visitor.

Girls make the very best visitors. They go away from home expecting enjoyment, and as a rule, they give pleasure every day while they are in their new environment.

Gladys is the most successful visitor I know. Perhaps it is because she has the capacity of enjoyment to such a great degree. She is easily amused, she likes music and dancing, and she's a clever talker and everyone in the family has a happy time when Gladys comes visiting.

There had been a great attempt to recreate the gown, but all to no effect. Everyone in the family, and among Aunt Sophronia's intimate friends, had become tired of hearing the sorrowful story of disappointment.

When Gladys came Aunt Sophronia found a sympathetic listener to her tale of woe, for hours she sat and told all of the odds and ends of the tragic happening and Gladys really understood the full meaning of the story. Gladys even tried to remedy the defects in the construction of the gown, but failed miserably, and so after awhile Aunt Sophronia became reconciled to the facts in the case and enjoyed the visit of Gladys really and truly from that time on.

This episode did not worry our visitor. She danced just as lightly and sang just as happily after a siege with Aunt Sophronia.

We all enjoyed the singing of Gladys, although her voice is but a sweet soprano with little power, yet she has great expression when she sings, and she can lead a jolly chorus in the most charming way and make everybody within hearing join in, too.

What a difference there is in singing about this! Some of them make everybody eagerly join in the song if they know it, and if not, in a few minutes they learn it under the tutelage of the joyous Gladys, and Uncle Joe says that he has determined to learn to dance if Gladys will take him in charge. This announcement was not made until just as our visitor was going away. When she next comes Uncle Joe declares he will learn to two-step if it takes all Summer, and Gladys joyously laughed over the acquisition of her sixty-years-old suitor.

Not Beautiful, But Loved

Aunt Sophronia, in the early Summer, had a severe disciplinary sorrow. Her dressmaker spelled her one beautiful new costume for the Summer, and Aunt Sophronia could not afford to get another. She sat and mourned over the charming creation of mauve which was pretty when not worn, because of its color and the trimmings that adorned it, but once donned—why, the whole effect was tragic!

Lovely and Yet Unloved

It was the same everywhere. Children and old people and all in between loved our visitor, and we are all waiting for her to come again. It is the joyous spirit which loves and appreciates the world and everyone in it which makes Gladys such a success at home or abroad. I hope you had some such visitor during the Summer, but I have my doubts.

I am thinking of another guest who has been staying with some friends of mine. A beautiful girl is Louise, but restless, easily discouraged, not at all able to take upon herself the joys and sorrows of others. Beautifully dressed and with charming manners, one would think Louise would be welcome everywhere. But so stiff and uncompromising is her attitude in every way that I fear she has outworn her welcome in the delightful house where she is visiting.

Louise is thinking of herself, while Gladys evidently thinks not of herself at all, so one of them makes no impression of joy and happiness in the house while the other fills it full of life and beauty.

How certainly character registers in every episode of life.

Diary of a Fashion Model

She Chats About a Smart Afternoon Gown.

PAM came bounding into the manikin's room this afternoon. "What do you think has happened?" she asked in a most excited tone.

"How should I know?" I returned coolly.

"You shouldn't," she agreed. "But it's wonderful."

"What is it?" I asked, for I was really dying to find out.

"Madame has accepted my design for the afternoon dress," she announced.

I was all agog immediately.

"You mean it's one you did yesterday?" I queried.

"Yes," Pam answered. Then she continued:

"You know I had a sudden inspiration for a frock that I thought would be a beauty. I simply sketched it roughly and took it to Madame. She said she liked it a lot."

Pam paused and I urged her to go on.

"Well, Madame called me into her office today," Pam continued, in a voice full of breathless excitement. "She told me she had decided to use the design for our fashion opening, and that she wanted to pay me for it."

Then she produced the sketch and proceeded to explain it to me.

"The materials are black satin and pearl gray chiffon," Pam told me.

I remarked that Madame must have liked the idea.

"She thought the material combination was excellent," said Pam modestly. "And she was much impressed with the little emerald green bow I put at the back," Pam added.

"You see, the black satin makes practically the entire foundation," she said. "Except that the pearl gray chiffon forms the back of the waist portion."

"I like the little back bib," I remarked.

"It drops over the waist, so that there are two layers of chiffon at the back," Pam explained. "The green bow comes from slits," she added. "It runs beneath the frock in front and appears only at the back."

Tomorrow's HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 1

'According to the predominant stellar movements, this should be a day notable for an important change or journey which should bring great advantages and eventual success. This change may be sudden and unlooked for, as it comes under the abrupt influence of Uranus, both by Lunar and Mercurial aspect. The financial outlook is favorable, under a beneficent Jupiter, and those in the employment of others are likewise under a fortunate planetary rule for advancement.

Those whose birthday it is are under excellent rule for a successful year, with increased finances and advancement. There is the possibility of many sudden and abrupt changes, involving travel, which should bring unlooked-for benefits. A child born on this day is likely to be talented, inventive, original, but may be restless and fond of change. It is probable that it will travel much and be generally successful in its undertakings.

ADVICE TO GIRLS

By ANNIE LAURIE

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

1.—Should a young girl call attention to the fact when a young man walks on the wrong side of her?

2.—Should a young man walk in the middle of two young ladies or the outside?

3.—When strange young men start a flirtation, should we answer them or simply ignore them?

4.—If a young man kisses a young girl by force would it be proper, under the circumstances, to slap him?

PUZZLED COOKY AND MICKY.

PUZZLED COOKY AND MICKY: 1.—No, she should not. But she can manage things so that the young man will be on the outside.

2.—The young man should always walk on the outside.

3.—By all means, ignore him.

4.—The young lady should tell the young man what she thinks of his conduct and if she thinks that he will repeat it, she should not go out with him again, but it would be hardly ladylike to slap him.

Annie Laurie will welcome letters of inquiry on subjects of feminine interest from young women readers of this paper and will reply to them in these columns. Letters to Miss Laurie should be addressed to her in care of this office.

YOUR HEALTH

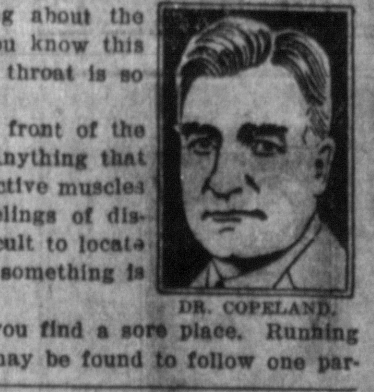

What to Do to Banish A Distressing Sore Throat

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D., United States Senator from New York, Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

YESTERDAY I told you something about the anatomy of the throat. When you know this it helps to make clear why sore throat is so common.

The main support of the sides and front of the throat are the muscles of the neck. Anything that interferes with the free play of these active muscles will give you vague and uncertain feelings of discomfort in the throat. It may be difficult to locate or define the trouble. You just know something is wrong and that's all.

By feeling around on the outside you find a sore place. Running the finger up and down, the soreness may be found to follow one particular muscle.

DR. COPELAND.

Such a sore throat as this is often referred to as rheumatic, or as "rheumatism of the throat." It has all the causes of the other forms of rheumatism.

One of the most common of all human ailments is tonsillitis. Of this there are several varieties. It may take the form of simple swelling and redness, or, associated with these symptoms, there may be white patches on the tonsils. Then we call the trouble "follicular tonsillitis."

When the infection is of a different type, there may develop an abscess in the tonsil. Lots of pus may form, the affected tonsil swells up to great size, almost completely filling the throat. The tonsil tissues are swollen and tense. There may be high fever and great prostration. This is what we usually refer to as "quincy" or "quincy sore throat."

Some persons are susceptible to sore throat. One attack is speedily followed by another. The quincy may reappear every Spring and Fall. You must give consideration to a lot of things in the case of repeated sore throats. First, find out what is the condition of the mouth.

Decayed teeth and abscesses at their roots account for the presence of germs that may infect the tonsils. Puffy gums, often called "bleeding disease," is another ailment which is a menace to health.

You cannot have a focus of pus development without danger to your health. No life is safe if somewhere in the body the germs of disease are being born every minute. Not only then, to escape sore throat, but to save your health you must get rid of local infections.

The tongue may carry debris and the germs of disease. You haven't

Answers to Health Questions

W. E. A. Q.—What causes my five-year-old daughter to have a very offensive breath in the morning?

A.—When she is eating she clears her throat constantly. What would you advise?

A.—This condition might be caused by diseased tonsils and adenoids, decayed teeth, or by a catarrhal condition. Have your doctor suggest treatment when he has examined her.

2.—This is probably due to catarrh.

FAMOUS "FIRSTS"

Brief Stories of the Men and Women Who Led the Way By MARK STUYVESANT.

What Clive Did to Give the Empire of India to England.

ROBERT CLIVE was the son of a British gentleman whose income was so small that he had to practice law to eke it out. At the age of eighteen the boy was sent to India as an accountant in the service of the British East India Company.

At that time, 1742, India was still nominally ruled by the Great Mogul, but was actually a group of states under native rulers. The English, French, Portuguese and Dutch were there on suzerainty, each having zones in which they were free to trade. The merchants of the East India Company were given a few soldiers by the British government to protect them.

The various companies were continually encroaching upon one another and securing favor with the native rulers by helping them in their wars.

Young Clive chafed under his work as a bookkeeper and induced Major Lawrence, commander of the English soldiers in Madras, to appoint him an ensign in his forces. Clive quickly distinguished himself and was soon appointed to a captaincy.

His first won fame when with three hundred native troops and two hundred Europeans, he defended Arcot for five days against Chanda Sahib and a big army so determinedly that they raised the siege.

His next great exploit was to cross India and punish the Bengalee ruler who had taken Calcutta and put the English prisoners into the "black hole" from which only twenty-three came out alive.

With only 600 British soldiers, eight hundred native troops and five hundred sailors, Clive smashed an Indian army of 34,000 men in his campaign to retake Calcutta.

Then making an alliance with the claimant to the throne of Bengal, Clive defeated the Nawab or ruler at Plassey. As a result of this great battle he was able to make treaties which gave all Eastern India to the British company as ruler, putting thirty million inhabitants under their control. No longer did the company have to work through native rulers. And Clive was created Baron Clive of Plassey, when the news reached England.

Clive, all this time, though holding a commission in the British army, was actually working for a trading company. He had received presents from native rulers for assistance given them amounting to a vast sum, and distributed a large amount among his officers and men.

The Clerk Became a Soldier.

as well as securing to the company an income far above what it had ever been.

Nevertheless, Clive came near being impeached by the British parliament led by General John Burgoyne, who afterward lost an Empire in America for England, by surrendering to Gates at Saratoga. Parliament after a long and wordy session, took no action.

Clive was broken in health from his many years in India and took his troubles in England very much to heart. Suddenly the nation was shocked to hear that the great man had committed suicide.

Clive had done more for his country than any soldier till Wellington, and more for India than any statesman in history. His death occurred on November 29, 1774.

HOME-MAKING HELPS

"Everything About the House Help to Make the Home"

By WANDA BARTON

Solving Some of the Etiquette Problems of Correspondence.

THERE is nothing that stamps our breeding more certainly than the stationery we use. The paper with which we stock the family and individual writing desks forms the habits of our children in this important detail. The old-fashioned method of buying a good quality of Irish linen or bond paper by the pound for family use was a good one and still prevails in many conservative households. Its use is always correct.

Mother's feel that it is always of importance to have their daughters' desks properly fitted, but too often their sons are neglected in this way and the general library or sitting room desk is considered sufficient for their needs. This is a great mistake, for boys need the same training in this way that girls are given, and they need a desk and privacy for their own correspondence and papers and are entitled to that consideration.

Cream white Irish linen or bond paper, pale gray or soft tan in shade if preferred, the sheets eight by five and a half inches, envelopes four by five and a half inches, is standard and correct. If there is no crest or monogram for which a die must be made, the address of the home may be used across the top of the sheets two and a half inches from the top. A die will be needed for this, and it is best in black lettering or marine blue. Correspondence cards are always needed and they should be of a size to fit the envelopes.

Old-fashioned note paper of diminutive size is of the past, but if the family has a great many social obligations, note paper one size smaller to match the regular paper may be kept for special use.

There is a fad just now for very large envelopes with non-folding paper sheets to fit. The lining of the envelopes is as gay as a futurist painting. Women who want to advertise their freakishness, or would-be originality, are using this. Then there is a French paper in ciel blue with "bleeded" border of deeper shade that is a fad of the moment. Embossed paper in imitation leather or tree bark, rough paper with torn edges, the paper that is sheet and envelope in one, the very thin onion skin paper that now appears in pale green with deep green lined envelopes—all these things are a passing fashion and their use is open to the criticism of the conservative buyer. Special paper for men folds once and fits in large rectangular envelopes.

If we supply our children with the accepted and correct stationery, they will form the habit of its use. In after years, if they choose to adopt the fads of the moment, that is up to them—we at least have done our best, and very likely they will return to the fold after a few centuries in the field of passing fashion.

The young women had been virtually shut up in their home because of their father's desire that they refrain from wedding.

CHINA WITH REAL LEADER.

SEEN AS POWERFUL NATION MELBOURNE—If China had a real leader it would be a first class power within ten years in the opinion of Colonel Eldred Pottinger who came here to lecture on Eastern problems in their relation to Australia.

Development of a leader is by no means impossible, Colonel Pottinger holds. Thousands of Chinese have western education and millions have experienced the advantages of democratic self-government in other countries.

Expansion, he believes, is more important to China than to Japan. China has nowhere to send her people unless she can force an outlet. At present this is impossible but with a strong central government under a firm dictator, it would be possible.

"There are 400 million people in China, which commands unlimited resources. Let these people be welded and the world will have to watch unceasingly the land of the dragon," is the colonel's prediction.

"China's opportunity to strike at an unpeopled land would be in the event of a war between Japan and the United States and a rebellion to occupy the British in India. These things are not impossible and it must be remembered that the Chinese, properly led, are fine soldiers."

SYNOPSIS

Sir Oliver Tressilian, renowned for his exploits on the Spanish Main, is betrothed to Rosamund Godolphin, but the marriage is opposed by Rosamund's brother, Peter. By repeated insults Peter finally provokes Oliver to threaten murder, and when Oliver's young half-brother, Lionel, kills Peter in an unprovoked quarrel over a woman's suspicion falls on Oliver. Even Rosamund believes him guilty and asks him to explain the trail of blood found leading from the body to his doorway. Feeling bound to protect Lionel, Oliver can do nothing but protest his innocence. But he goes to the justices and asks them to draw up a document attesting to the fact that he bears on his body no mark of recent wound; that therefore the trail of blood, obviously that of the murderer, injured in the encounter, was not his. This document he takes away to hold in readiness until needed.

A few weeks later Lionel learns from Jasper Leigh, a pirate sea captain whose ship is lying in the harbor, that the queen has been petitioned to command the justices to bring Oliver to trial—which they had previously refused to do—and he fears that should Oliver clear himself his own implication would follow. Oliver, meantime, goes to Rosamund to lay the proof of his innocence before her, but she refuses to see him. Lionel tells him of the petition to the queen.

The morning—a blustering day of late March—found him again at that ale-house at Penycumwick in the company of Jasper Leigh. A course had occurred to him, as the only course now possible. Last night his brother had muttered something of going to Killigrew with his proofs since Rosamund refused to receive him. Through Killigrew he would reach her, he had said, and he would yet see her on her knees craving his pardon for the wrong she had done him, for the cruelty she had shown him.

Lionel knew that Killigrew was absent from home just then, but he was expected to return by Easter, and to Easter there was but a week. Therefore he had little time in which to act, little time in which to execute the project that had come into his mind. He cursed himself for conceiving it, but held to it with all the strength of a weak nature.

Yet when he came to sit face to face with Jasper Leigh in that little inn-parlor with the scrubbed table of plain deal between them, he lacked the courage to set his proposal forth. They drank sherry sack stiffly laced with brandy by Lionel's suggestion instead of the more customary mulled ale. Yet not until he had consumed best part of a pint of it did Lionel feel himself heartened to breaching his loathsome business. Through his head hummed the words his brother had said some time ago when first the name of Jasper Leigh had passed between them—"a desperate adventurer ripe for anything. So the price be high enough you may buy him body and soul."

Money enough to buy Jasper Leigh was ready to Lionel's hand, but it was Sir Oliver's money—the money that was placed at Lionel's disposal by his half-brother's open-handed bounty. And this money he was to employ for Oliver's utter ruin! He cursed himself for a filthy, contemptible bound; he cursed the foul fiend that whispered such suggestions into his mind; he knew himself, despised himself and reviled himself until he came to swear to be strong and to go through with whatever might avail him sooner than be guilty of such baseness; the next moment that same resolve would set him shuddering again as he viewed the inevitable consequences that must attend it.

Suddenly the captain set him a question, very softly, that fired the train and blew all his lingering self-resistance into shreds.

"You'll ha' borne my warning to Sir Oliver?" he asked, lowering his voice so as not to be overheard by the vintner who was stirring beyond the thin wooden partition.

Master Lionel nodded, nervously fingering the jewel in his ear, his eyes shifting from their consideration of the seaman's coarse, weather-tanned and hairy countenance.

"I did," he said. "But Sir Oliver is headstrong. He will not stir."

"Will he not?" The captain stroked his bushy red beard and cursed profusely and horribly after the fashion of the sea. "O'd' wounds. He's very like to swing if he bides him here."

"Aye," said Lionel, "if he bides." He felt his mouth turn dry as he spoke; his heart thudded, but its thuds were softened by a slight insensibility which the liquor had produced in him.

He uttered the words in so curious a tone that the sailor's dark eyes peered at him from under his heavy sandy eyebrows. There was alert inquiry in that glance. Master Lionel got up suddenly.

"Let us take a turn outside, captain," said he.

The captain's eyes narrowed. He scented business. There was something plausibly odd about this young gentleman's manner. He tossed off the remains of his sack, slapped down the pot and rose.

"Your servant, Master Tressilian," said he.

Outside our gentleman untethered his horse from the iron ring to which he had attached the bridle; leading his horse he turned seaward and strode down the road that wound along the estuary toward Smithick.

A sharp breeze from the north was whipping the water into white peaks of foam; the sky was of a hard brightness and the sun shone brilliantly. The tide was running out, and the rock in the very neck of the haven was thrusting its black crest above the water. A cable's length this side of it rode the black hull and naked spars of the Swallow—Captain Leigh's ship.

Lionel stepped along in silence, very gloomy and pensive, hesitating even now. And the crafty mariner reading this hesitation and anxious to conquer it for the sake of such profit as he conceived might lie in the proposal which he scented, paved the way for him at last.

"I think that ye'll have some matter to propose to me," said he slyly. "Out with it, sir, for there never was a man more ready to serve you."

"The fact is," said Lionel, watching the other's face with a sidelong glance, "I am in a difficult position, Master Leigh."

"I've been in a many," laughed the captain, "but never yet in one through which I could not win. Strip forth your own, and haply I can do as much for you as I am wont to do for myself."

"Why, it is this wise," said the other. "My brother will assuredly hang as you have said if he bides

"Master Lionel nodded, nervously fingering the jewel in his ear."

him here. He is lost if they bring him to trial. And in that case, faith, I am lost too. It dishonors a man's family to have a member of it hanged. 'Tis a horrible thing to have happen."

"Indeed, indeed!" the sailor agreed encouragingly.

"I would abstract him from this," pursued Lionel, and at the same time cursed the foul fiend that prompted him such specious words to cloak his villainy. "I would abstract him from it, and yet 'tis against my conscience that he should go unpunished, for I swear to you, Master Leigh, that I abhor the deed—a cowardly, murderous deed!"

"Ah!" said the captain. And lest that grim ejaculation should check his gentleman he made haste to add:

"To be sure! To be sure!"

Master Lionel stopped and fixed the other squarely, his shoulders to his horse.

"I'll be quite plain and open with you, Master Leigh. Peter Godolphin was my friend. Sir Oliver is no more than my half-brother. I would give a deal to the man who would abstract Sir Oliver secretly from the doom that hangs over him, and yet do the thing in such a way that Sir Oliver should not thereby escape the punishment he deserves."

The captain looked grim. He laid a finger upon Master Lionel's velvet doublet in line with that false heart of his.

"I am your man," said he. "But the risk is great. Yet ye say that ye'd give a deal!"

"Yourself shall name the price," said Lionel quickly, his eyes burning feverishly, his cheeks white.

"Oh, I can contrive it, never fear," said the captain. "I know to a nicety what you require. How say you now—if I was to carry him overseas to the plantations where they lack tollers of just such thews as his?"

Moulton News

A. G. Simpson, contractor and carter of Albany, died very suddenly at Landersville Friday afternoon. His wife and his sister, Mrs. J. I. Stockton of near Albany, came to his bedside a few hours before he passed away but he was unconscious from a stroke of paralysis which had stricken him Thursday night at some time. For the past two weeks he had had charge of the construction of the new Landersville school as contractor, during Thursday he was at his work but not well and his condition was only discovered Friday morning when he was called for breakfast, he was in the home of Arthur Young, Mr. Simpson was well and favorably known to many at Moulton and at Landersville.

The county high school has just received the beginning of a new library to replace the one lost by fire in May. Sixty-nine volumes came Thursday representing a cost of ninety dollars. Miss Annie Wheeler, daughter of General Joseph Wheeler and Misses Ephel and Maggie Young of Moulton gave twenty dollars each securing a donation of thirty dollars from the state and library fund; encyclopedias are being secured also so that in spite of the handicaps under which the school is laboring it may still be kept on the accredited list.

Lawrence, county agent, for the fair to be held at Moulton, October 10 and 11, Miss Agnes Harris, Dean of Women at Auburn and head of home demonstration work in Alabama as judge of all home products. Frank E. Boyd of the department of agronomy, Auburn, as judge of farm products and J. K. Sharps of Montgomery of the state health department to take charge of the health exhibits and give an illustrated lecture on better health conditions. Town Creek is preparing for a community fair on the 4th of October which will draw exhibits from several portions of the county in addition to large local displays.

The Lawrence County Board of Education met in regular session Friday and transacted much of interest to the schools of the county; one of the more striking actions taken was a recommendation that in the future trustees for the various school districts be legal voters of the county, the bulk of the work done pertained to the finances of the schools and consideration of a number of serious local problems.

The jury term of county court convenes today with W. R. Jackson, judge of probate presiding; a number of cases are to be tried and sessions lasting three days or more may be necessary.

Dr. Fowkes of the Smithsonian Institution Washington and Mr. Gerard Fowkes, connected with the same institution were in territory around Moulton, Saturday examining especially the Indian mounds around the Oakville pond ten miles east of Moulton and the cave with Indian relics of those nearer prehistoric people about the Jake Alexander place near Moulton. They pronounced the relics and mounds of great interest and Mr. Fowkes plans to make excavations in several of them during October, at present he is excavating a mound near the mouth of Town Creek in the north east part of the county. Dr. Fowkes is spending but a few days in the north of Alabama and while here has visited the shell mounds along the north bank of the Town Creek.

HOLLYWOOD ACTRESS ELOPES

NITA NALDI

Great indignation was shown by Nita Naldi, film star from California, when reporters found her aboard a Europe-bound vessel and wanted to photograph her. She didn't like her holiday interrupted, she said, but later smilingly consented to a snapshot. The reason for the pout was explained when it was learned she was sailing to wed a Cleveland banker whom she met seven years ago while she was a chorus girl.
